2. CURRICULUM

1) Program Background

The Republic of Korea, once one of the poorest countries in the world during the 1960s, achieved modernization through rapid industrialization as well as democratization within just a several decades. South Korea is the only country which transformed itself from a recipient of foreign aid to a donor. This experience puts South Korea in a unique position within the global political economic order, hence has much to share with other countries that seek economic and social development.

This program aims to train women in the public sector and civil societies for the purpose of achieving sustainable agriculture and inclusive rural community development. This program is designed to cultivate policy specialists and community leaders who play active roles in the economic and social development with a gender perspective. This program provides participants with opportunities to be exposed to the various theoretical discourses, policy issues in rural community development, social research methods, and analytical tools, with a gender perspective in particular.

The curriculum is interdisciplinary, taught by faculty members in the field of public policy and administration, rural economics, development sociology, environment and gender studies. In addition, this program emphasizes the integration of theory and practice. For example, participants learn innovative solutions for social problems through local community organizations such as Social Cooperatives in the Wonju area. Also, participants stay in the Canaan Farmers' School, which is known for its practical training and disciplined life during the winter and summer sessions. Through this program, participants will be equipped with analytical tools and innovative problem solving abilities grounded in the field.

2) Semesters and Sessions

The program is run for three regular semesters, plus two summer/winter sessions: from fall semester of 2020, as shown in the table below.

Semester	Total Credits (38)	Place	Duration
Orientation	0 credits	Yonsei University	10 days
Fall Semester 2021	9 credits	Yonsei University	16 weeks
Winter Session 2021	7 credits	Yonsei University (Canaan Farmers' School)	3 weeks (1 week)
Spring Semester 2022	10 credits	Yonsei University	16 weeks

Fall Semester 2022	6 credits	Yonsei University	16 weeks
Spring Semester 2023	0 credit	Home Country	16 weeks

Therefore, participants should complete all course requirements and thesis for graduation by the fall semester of 2022, within 17 months. When they successfully complete all graduation requirements, they will receive their master's diploma in August 2023. The Korean education law only allows issuance of a graduation certificate after 18 months have passed (that is, in the fourth semester). So, spring semester of 2023 in the above table is only to meet the requirements of the Korean government's education law.

Regular semesters (fall and spring) consist of 16 weeks, and participants normally take 9 or 10 credits each semester. During the semesters, all classes are open at Yonsei University Mirae Campus except for winter and summer sessions, due to the practical training program.

During the winter and summer sessions, classes are open at the Canaan Farmers' School (see details of this institution in Part V) as well as at Yonsei University. After the session at Yonsei for 3 weeks, all participants will go to Canaan Farmers' School to take the practical training program. When the participants enter into the Canaan Farmers' School, the standard daily schedule here during the session is as shown in the table below. Following the rules of Canaan Farmers' School, 2 participants share a room together to build community leadership.
