JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Program (KCCP)

The Japanese Cabinet released the Development Cooperation Charter in February 2015, stated that “In its development cooperation, Japan has maintained the spirit of jointly creating things that suit partner countries while respecting ownership, intentions and intrinsic characteristics of the country concerned based on a field oriented approach through dialogue and collaboration. It has also maintained the approach of building reciprocal relationships with developing countries in which both sides learn from each other and grow and develop together.” We believe that this ‘Knowledge Co-Creation Program’ will serve as a foundation of mutual learning process.

For What?

Background

In Japan, under the Community Health Act, human resources for health (HRH) engaging in public health are assigned to health centers and public health offices established by local governments across the country. They provide primary health care (PHC), through efforts for improving public health, disease prevention, and health promotion for a wide range of community residents from children to older persons.

In many countries, there is a growing need to enhance PHC, considering shifts in demographic composition and disease patterns. This underscores the critical need for strategically deploying HRH within the public health sector. This training program provides participants with opportunities to learn about PHC, HRH, relevant laws, systems, service models including collaboration and cooperation with various organizations. Through these experiences, participants will enhance the capacity for developing policies and plans related to HRH in PHC in different countries.

This program is positioned under JICA's Global Agenda (JGA) for Health, specifically within the JGA Cluster Strategy on "Strengthening Health Service Delivery". The cluster aims to achieve resilient, equitable, and sustainable Universal Health Coverage (UHC) by strengthening health systems, including prevention, preparedness, and response to public health emergencies, thereby ensuring that all people can safely access adequate, quality health services when needed.

Objectives

- (1) Deepen their knowledge and understanding of Japan's laws, systems and policies related to PHC and HRH, and education systems for HRH in Japan.
- (2) Analyze the issues of HRH in PHC in their respective countries and formulate the action plan to strengthen HRH for maintaining and promoting community health.

To Whom?

Target Participants

Individuals who formulate policies and plans for HRH in the target organizations and possess sufficient English proficiency to participate in training.

The applying organization with the best intention to utilize the opportunity of this program will be highly valued in the selection.

Targeted Countries

Indonesia, Philippines, Laos, India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Barbados, Nicaragua, Egypt, Morocco, Sudan, Tanzania

Participants who have successfully completed the program will be awarded a certificate by JICA.

JICA and Capacity Development

Technical cooperation is people-to-people cooperation that supports partner countries in enhancing their comprehensive capacities to address development challenges by their own efforts. Instead of applying Japanese technology per se to partner countries, JICA's technical cooperation provides solutions that best fit their needs by working with people living there. In the process, consideration is given to factors such as their regional characteristics, historical background, and languages. JICA does not limit its technical cooperation to human resources development; it offers multi-tiered assistance that also involves organizational strengthening, policy formulation, and institution building.

Implementation methods of JICA's technical cooperation can be divided into two approaches. One is overseas cooperation by dispatching experts and volunteers in various development sectors to partner countries; the other is domestic cooperation by inviting participants from developing countries to Japan. The latter method is the Knowledge Co-Creation Program, formerly called Training Program, and it is one of the core programs carried out in Japan. By inviting officials from partner countries and with cooperation from domestic partners, the Knowledge Co-Creation Program provides technical knowledge and practical solutions for development issues in participating countries.

The Knowledge Co-Creation Program (Group & Region Focus) has long occupied an important place in JICA operations. About 400 pre-organized courses cover a wide range of professional fields, ranging from education, health, infrastructure, energy, trade and finance, to agriculture, rural development, gender mainstreaming, and environmental protection. A variety of programs is being customized by the different target organizations to address the specific needs, such as policy-making organizations, service provision organizations, as well as research and academic institutions. Some programs are organized to target a certain group of countries with similar developmental challenges.

Japanese Development Experience

Japan, as the first non-Western nation to become a developed country, built itself into a country that is free, peaceful, prosperous and democratic while preserving its tradition. Japan will serve as one of the best examples for our partner countries to follow in their own development.

From engineering technology to production management methods, most of the know-how that has enabled Japan to become what it is today has emanated from a process of adoption and adaptation, of course, has been accompanied by countless failures and errors behind the success stories.

Through Japan's progressive adaptation and application of systems, methods and technologies from the West in a way that is suited to its own circumstances, Japan has developed a storehouse of knowledge not found elsewhere from unique systems of organization, administration and personnel management to such social systems as the livelihood improvement approach and governmental organization. It is not easy to apply such experiences to other countries where the circumstances differ, but the experiences can provide ideas and clues useful when devising measures to solve problems.

JICA, therefore, would like to invite as many leaders of partner countries as possible to come and visit us, to mingle with the Japanese people, and witness the advantages as well as the disadvantages of Japanese systems, so that integration of their findings might help them to reach their developmental objectives.

This information pertains to one of the JICA Knowledge Co-Creation Programs (Group & Region Focus) of the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) implemented as part of the Official Development Assistance of the Government of Japan based on bilateral agreement between both Governments.
