It also continues to realign our focuses in order to deliver Thailand's commitments as a global reliable partner.

The Colombo Plan for Cooperative Economic and Social Development in Asia and the Pacific is a unique intergovernmental organization providing development assistance under the "Planning for Prosperity" motto and the concept of self-help where member countries provide assistance to one another in socio-economic development.

The Colombo Plan was conceived at the Commonwealth Conference on Foreign Affairs held in Colombo, Ceylon (now Sri Lanka) in January 1950 and was established on 1 July 1951 as a cooperative venture for the economic and social advancement of the people of South and Southeast Asia. It has grown from the founding group of seven Commonwealth nations - Australia, Britain, Canada, Ceylon, India, New Zealand and Pakistan - to 28 including non-Commonwealth and countries belonging to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC). Current Colombo Plan member countries are Afghanistan, Australia, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Brunei, Chile, Fiji, India, Indonesia, Iran, Japan, Republic of Korea, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Laos, Malaysia, Maldives, Mongolia, Myanmar, Nepal, New Zealand, Pakistan, Papua New Guinea, the Philippines, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Thailand, United States of America and Vietnam.

In December 1977 the Colombo Plan for Cooperative Economic Development in South and Southeast Asia was changed to The Colombo Plan for Co-operative Economic and Social Development in Asia and the Pacific, to reflect the expanded geographical composition of its enhanced membership and the scope of its activities. The Colombo Plan endeavours to enhance Human Resource Development initiatives in the member countries through its Capacity Building Programmes. The Colombo Plan provides short-term training courses, workshops, scholarships and Master's degree programmes under the wings of its Capacity Building Programme. All activities are fully or partially funded on cost sharing basis by donors in the Colombo Plan member countries and other International Organizations.

Our mission is to produce quality human resources and develop excellence in academics, research, and innovations for the society under disruptions to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals in accordance with Thailand's development. And our vision is to become a Leading University in ASEAN with International Recognition.

School of Social Innovation was established with an ultimate aim to produce human resources with academic excellence and to have interdisciplinary social practices knowledge, especially in international development. The School of Social Innovation aims to solve complex social problems in more practical and sustained way amid the rapid changes in societies around the world. The School of Social Innovation aims to educate our students within the framework of sustainable development in accordance with UN guidelines. Moreover, the School of Social Innovation brings Thailand's good practice and applies the concept of Thailand's Sufficiency Economy Philosophy (SEP) as one of the most important concepts to ensure sustainable development.

Sufficient Economy Philosophy (SEP)

Sufficiency Economy Philosophy (SEP) is a home-grown approach for sustainable development. This philosophy was first promoted by His Majesty the late King Bhumibol Adulyadej since the 1950s as self-reliant or sustainable farming. Later, in the 1970s, it was accepted as an idea of Sufficiency Economy. Founded on the fundamental principle of Thai culture, Sufficiency Economy is a method of development based on three pillars: Moderation, Reasonableness and Risk Management. Knowledge and virtue are conditions for decision and activities that carry out at a sufficient level. One of principles is that the producers or consumers produce or consume within the limitation of existing income or resources. However, it does not mean that one must constantly be prudent. It is to consume within one's capacity.

Despite the positive impact of modern and rapid development, it led to the rise of consumerism which created economic dependence and deterioration of natural resources. Existing kinship, traditional knowledge and wisdom are forgotten and have started to disappear. The 1997 Thailand's economic crisis is a costly example of unbalanced, unstable growth and improper economic and social development process. This crisis highlighted the important of SEP which emphasizes on strengthening community's capacity, balancing way of life and resilience and respecting for the environment.

The concept and goals of SEP and SDGs are similar; aiming to achieve sustainable development where poverty is eradicated and inequality is reduced, for example. As a decision-making framework, SEP is a way for Thailand to apply, implement and achieve the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development.

Community Based Tourism

Tourism is among the highest income industries in Thailand. Impressive natural beauty, friendly hospitality and reasonable price are a few examples on why Thailand tourism is very attractive. However, financial benefits from tourism come with a great cost. Tourism industry that focuses only on business and profit greatly affect both natural resources and local community. Unsustainable business practice takes money out of community and leave only the destruction of environment. Therefore, Community Based Tourism (CBT) was developed as an alternative business practice and new travel destination. Focusing on identity and locality, community play an important role in operating and managing CBT. Not only about material development, CBT is also about participation so that local community receive maximum profit. Strengthened community, restoration and preservation of culture, dignity and sustainability of environment are targets of CBT.

However, just like any development, sustainability of CBT is crucial and this is where SEP plays an important role in its development. Without the concept of SEP, CBT will become business oriented and aims only for profit. Together with knowledge and virtue, the three pillars of SEP are needed for CBT to become sustainable business model where benefit is for everyone and environment is preserved. This program will reveal how SEP and business can work together and provide benefit for the whole community and environment.

The Training Program

This program offers knowledge, training and firsthand experiences in SEP, SDGs and CBT for participants. Participants will receive enough support and encouragement to set up similar project in their home countries.
